SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

Learning to Be Doctor.

William Denker of Norwich Town, who is at Camp McClellan, has written the following letter to his family, describing his work at the hospital.

I am taking pleasure in writing to you a few lines to let you know I received the picture both of you sent me and I thank you both very much. I am smoking one of the cigars while I am writing this letter and, believe me, I certainly do like the Norwich cigars and the apples. I can picture myself home picking some of them off the trees to store away for the winter. Well, I will probably be doing it again pretty soon. Yes, I was longing for apples and now I have them and plenty of them, but I can eat anything from my home town.

Now for the candy Yum Yum. You both know I never ate much candy while I was home, but now I can't get enough. Well, thank you both, ma and Bob, for what you both have for me and some day I may be able to pay you both back.

Well, I am glad to hear you are all in the best of health. I am feeling pretty good, only for a bad cold and a sore right arm. It was so sore on Sunday that I could hardly lift it, but it is getting a good deal better today. I guess the night work don't agree with me very much, but I have it easy: all I do is to sit at my desk in the office of the hospital with a cigar in my mouth, my legs crossed and writing out patients' names well the first part of the evening from 7 to 9, I go around and take all the patients' temperatures and pulse and then I go back to my desk, sit down, with a cigar in my mouth, legs crossed, putting down the patients' names, temperatures and pulse time. After I get that done I rest myself back in the chair as proud as a millionaire, because I am smoking a cigar from home from my folks, meaning my sister Bob and mother.

Well, when I come back home again I will be as good a doctor. All of my patients here in this hospital call me Doctor, and you can well imagine how proud I am that I can do my bit for Uncle Sam in the line of taking care of his soldiers and doing my best to make them well again. Yes, the night nurse tells me I am giving the patients more care than any of the other fellows in any of the other hospitals and she told me to keep it up. She is certainly a nice nurse too, believe me. She is full of fun. Every time she comes into my ward or in other word hospital, she stays there an hour and we talk about different things. She is the head nurse and anything I want to know she tells me. Last night I wasn't feeling very good and I told her about it. Well, she said, "You're not sick, Bill, but I will give you some medicine," and she said, "I believe me, it was some awful tacking stuff, but I felt better after a while. Just to tell you how good she is, after she gave me the medicine she told me to lay down for a couple of hours and she would take care of my patients until I felt better. Of course she would come and look after me about every fifteen or twenty minutes and ask me if I felt better. Well, in a couple of hours I got up and told her I felt good and I could look after myself and my patients and so she said all right but take good care of yourself.

Just think of it, she is only twenty-one years old and a head night nurse. That's pretty good, isn't it? She is some nurse and a good one at that. Well, I'll say so. What do you think about it?

Say, listen to this. Here is where I fooled the night nurse a couple of nights ago. I had some blackberry jam and of course my tongue was all black or blue from the jam. Well, anyhow, when the night nurse came in I said, "Oh, I said, 'I am sick!' and she says, 'How's that, you don't look sick.' Well, I say, 'Look at my tongue,' and I showed it to her. She said, 'What's the matter, how did your tongue get that way?' Well, she took my temperature and pulse and said that was all right. She could see anything the matter with me, but she was going to give me some more medicine, and I said, 'Oh, no, you don't.' She said, 'Yes, take it, it may help you,' and I said, 'What do you mean, help to wash the blackberry jam off of my tongue?' and then you ought to have seen her laugh. I thought she would go into hysterics. Well, after she laughed enough she said, 'I didn't think of the blackberry jam we had for supper,' and I said, 'Well, I did' and she says, 'I see you did and you won't fool me the next time.'

Wounded With Shrapnel.

Mrs. L. B. Smith of Massapeag has received the following letter from her son Private Lyman Earl Smith from the American base hospital in France:

Dear Ma—Well I am still alive and kicking, taking my three meals regular, cleaning up everything as it is in front of me. I sent a letter to Ida the other day. If you got that it would relieve your mind as I imagine you wouldn't get much information from the government any more than I was wounded. My wound is nothing serious but nevertheless a rather uncomfortable one. The shrapnel went in my left side and stopped just before it got to my spine, which was a lucky thing for me. You may blame it on the ring as unlucky but if you knew what I know, well you wouldn't have nothing to say. I am able to walk around with a crutch and a good stiff bandage around me. Tell my father I could just about throw a quart can of milk on the train now. Well I wished you could have seen me when I got to the hospital, a week's head all full of mud and mud all over. Well, I guess I was a sight. I didn't know myself in a looking glass. I have cleaned up and look like a regular fellow now. One thing I am having a good rest which doesn't go bad at all.

I don't know when I will get any mail now as I am away from the company but when I do, expect to get a bunch of it. I am in hopes that the letter with the pictures doesn't go astray. I have lost practically all my belongings except a pen I had in my pockets. I have the watch still and I guess I will bring it home with me when I come which I expect will be soon.

The Red Cross is doing wonderful work here, giving cigarettes, candy and gum, besides the many comforts they are able to do for you. I am waiting to get my wound dressed and then am going outside in the sun which is shining for a wonder. You see the sun here about as often as the moon full.

Now is everything getting along home? I suppose all are doing well. I hope everybody is well and able to take their three per.

Is John keeping Henry on the go now? I suppose he has the barn finished by now. It must be some place. I hope those pictures come. I still have those pictures sent me.

The way the fellows are coming over the city must be deserted of young fellows. I know Massapeag is. All of them are over here from there. Well, chow just blew and I expect the fellow will be around with his peanut wagon to feed us. The feeds are very good and all you can eat. Give my love to all.

Your loving son

WORKERS ARE SOUGHT FOR SEVEN ORGANIZATIONS

At one of the concluding meetings of the United War Work campaign, a letter from James Logan, chairman of the northeastern department, was read to the workers, inviting any among them to enlist themselves, or nominate other suitable persons for seven in one of the seven war fund agencies.

The letter was as follows:
To the Northeastern Department Campaign Workers:

A quarter of a billion dollars is about to flow into the treasuries of seven organizations. That means a great increase in the outflow of blessings of all kinds. It must be through a very much larger number of workers. Every dollar will perform its full measure of service only if our most efficient people represent these seven organizations in the field. What a responsibility!

You who have given so liberally of time and money are now called upon to give yourselves, or help secure men and women to represent you, in the distribution of the benefits that your gifts have made possible. To enlist for this service is a rare privilege and a patriotic duty.

It is absolutely essential to have only our best men and women serve our boys in the army and navy or our Allies, if you offer yourselves, or nominate others on the card that has been distributed, the fitness of the candidate will be investigated by the organization against whose name you make your cross.

Adding to Safety Deposit Boxes.
A new lot of safety deposit boxes to be added to the vault at the Norwich Savings society arrived on Tuesday, but will not be available for use until they have been set up by workmen from the factory. How soon this will be the bank officials do not know.

Workmen's Compensation.
Commissioner J. J. Donohue has approved the following workmen's compensation agreement:

American Bridge Co., Pittsburgh, employer, and Herbert N. Smith, New London, employee, right leg lacerated, at rate of $14.00.

W. H. Perry Ice Co., New London, employer, and Charlie Butler, New London, employee, severe scalp wound and shock, at rate of $12.75.

New London Ship & Engine Co., employer, and C. E. Jacques, New London, employee, contusion of finger, at rate of $13.77.

North Goshen.—Thousands of acres of land have been acquired in the direction of Hail Meadow and North Goshen for the Torrington Water Co., which contemplates the building of a large reservoir.
